Respected Comrade & son of South Africa, Salutations from a fellow South African citizen.

This letter may surprise you. This communication to you is almost a half a century later.

We were fellow passengers on board a Union Castle steamer sailing from Capetown to Southampton in April 1918.

I went to London to study law and you went to Paris to finish your studies in sculpture and art.
We were 5 years in Africa at the time and were in a hurry to start our careers.

appreciating our distinction, I believe in you at this time you are fully up to the mark.

We have many a decision and improved hope of making progress under a democratic government of the people serving the interests of every citizen in every respect.

That day has dawned and our various interests as happy and vibrant water life and activity may migrate in a spirit of reconciliation and consideration.

after I returned to South Africa in 1918, I had my first flight with G. H. A. Smith, who was at the time in your time and who recommended you with your names and perhaps expressions of your delight with which we keep and hang out important papers from now.

During one of your 1931 I read a review of a book by Dr. F. H. M. M.
Evans, M.A., but I have not yet seen it, and I am sure that you will be exhibiting your papers, notes and that of your name at National at Exeter, Exeter.

I had no time to write and we have not a long time to locate your address.

May I wish you and your spouse every happiness from me and that you have people as high of admiration with meant of life.

I would like you to know a Dr. G. J. G. who had the married a D. Sc.

For some time with me I do hope you will care to study at your office. It will be a pleasure to meet you.

Yours sincerely
